GENETIC TESTING CONSENT here "I" means the patient or guardian

I ask Yello Diagnostics to carry out cytogenetic / molecular testing on my sample (amniotic fluid, chorionic villi, fetal cord blood, peripheral blood or products of conception) to find out whether my fetus or I have an increased chance of the condition named as the reason for referral. Where this test is done on an invasive prenatal sample, my doctor has given me a separate consent (Form G) covering the risks of that procedure.

I understand that

- 1. The test needs enough good-quality cells or DNA. Yello Diagnostics is not responsible for problems caused by improper shipment or wrong submission of samples.
- 2. Sometimes the sample is not enough to reach a conclusion, and the test may need repeating.
- 3. More tests, or samples from the affected person, parents or other relatives, may be needed to give a clear answer. These may be needed before a prenatal sample is accepted.
- 4. If the family relationships are not as stated, the interpretation can be wrong.
- 5. Genetic tests keep improving. Very rarely a test may not work properly or an error may occur.
- 6. Leftover sample is not returned. It is kept under the laboratory retention policy. Extra studies on it can be done only on a request from the referring clinician, and may be charged.
- 7. My sample will not be used for validation or research without my separate consent.
- 8. I can withdraw consent at any time; any unused sample will be destroyed promptly.
- 9. Reports go to the ordering clinician only. Results are confidential and are not released to other professionals without my written consent.
- 10. Results may be reported as normal, abnormal, inconclusive, or as a test failure.
- 11. For a prenatal sample, results apply to this pregnancy only. Only a doctor can explain the chance of recurrence.

My signature below shows that I take part in this test willingly.
